

The "Rakugo" workshop was very interesting and a diversifying assignment for our art class. Although, I do wish that the rakugo speaker spoke some stories in Japanese as well so I could truly experience a Japan style storytelling traditionally. I also struggled with the "let's try rakugo!" portion of the workshop as public speaking is difficult for me so I did not enjoy that. But ultimately I had fun & learned a lot! ;)

The class was interesting because it ~~was~~ was my first time hearing 落語 in English. ~~for the first time~~. I liked how the presenter prepared a set of phrases so we can try it out. Overall I ~~had~~ had a fun time and it was a good experience.
